12 PRESENTATION BY THE FEDERATION OF SMALL BUSINESSES - Building Communities, Small Business, Big Heart

Sarah King, Development Manager (London), Federation of Small Businesses, gave a presentation on their report “Small business, Big Heart: Bringing Communities Together” (February 2019.) The report set out a number of recommendations, mainly addressed to government, on supporting communities, the labour market for disadvantaged groups, good work, work and health and service leavers.

One of the issues that the FSB campaigned on regularly on behalf of small businesses was late payment of invoices, and there was a comment that the NHS was often the worst offender. In response to a question, Sarah reported that there was a Women’s Group within the London FSB, and there was also a Women in Rural Enterprise Group.

13 LONDON ENTERPRISE ADVISOR NETWORK (LEAN) EAST

Kate Mawhinney, Senior Enterprise Coordinator, London Enterprise Adviser Network (LEAN), gave a presentation on the work of the Network, which was part of a national programme, the aim of which was to link schools and colleges to employers and enhance employer engagement.

There were already 3,000 schools and colleges signed up to the Network, but there was a need for a considerable increase in the number of Advisors - there were 70 in the London East region, but 700 were needed by August 2020 to serve a network anticipated to reach to 470 schools and colleges. It was envisaged that the role would only take up one day a month during the academic year, and would be locally based. Information about the LEAN programme had already been circulated to the Partnership, including the Enterprise Advisor Role Description, and attendees were urged to consider joining the initiative.

14 BROMLEY EDUCATION BUSINESS PARTNERSHIP

Lesley Holland, Bromley Education Business Partnership, circulated a flyer for the Careers Fair organised in conjunction with the DWP Bromley Job Centre Plus at 9.30am on Friday 12th July at the Bromley Central Library. The Fair was aimed at 16-24 year olds, particularly sixth form leavers, and around 30 employers had signed up to attend.

The Bromley Education Business Partnership provided a wide range of activities to link young people to employers and help schools and colleges deliver work related learning across the curriculum. The Partnership had a database of around 10,000 local employers and ran work experience programmes and a mentoring scheme. The Partnership also coordinated a programme of work experience for the Council, placing 43 young people in work experience within the Council in 2019.

Members of the Partnership gave an update around progress across the main themes of the Partnership.

a TOWN CENTRES DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMME UPDATE

Virgil Rappa provided an update on town centres, covering the following issues -

- The Churchill Quarter planning application was being considered and a decision was expected later in the autumn. The Council was continuing to work on site acquisition.
- Most of the Bromley town centre works were now complete, and the contractor was rectifying errors.
- Feature lighting was about to be installed for a number of buildings in Bromley High Street.
- Most of the works in Beckenham were complete.
- The benches had been installed in Orpington, and the accounts were being checked to see whether there was still any further money available.
- The shopfronts had been completed in Penge, and 13 bronze heritage plaques were being installed. An alternative to the Legible London signs was being considered for Penge.

In response to questions, Virgil explained that the vehicle barriers in the High Street were down until the autumn while the complex circuitry was sorted out. The remaining units at the St Mark's Square development were being fitted out and would be open soon - the elephant statue there had been provided by the developer. The old Town Hall had now been sold by the Council.

Colin Maclean reported that a major meeting had been organised in Penge/Anerley by the Police to combat violence - this was an opportunity for businesses to have their say and gain visibility.

Melanie Ross of Barclays complained about a market stall causing problems with access outside their property - this would be investigated.

Gary Hillman reported, as the owner of the Royal Bell, that he was waiting completion of the S.106 agreement. He commented that hotel operators were primarily concerned about the number of rooms, and were not interested in the ballroom. He was working on a music weekend using the ballroom to showcase music from four different youth cultures.
